AVOID HIGH-RISK SITUATIONS: In addition to practicing basic COVID-19 preventive measures such as washing your hands, wearing a face covering in public, and staying six feet from non-household members, you can minimize your risk for getting COVID-19 by AVOIDING these situations:

- Being in an enclosed space with others
- Being in a crowd or other situations where you cannot physically distance
- Long interactions with people outside your household
- Being around forceful exhalations, like coughing, yelling or singing

“When you’re thinking about places to go, things you’re doing, think about those four criteria and how you can minimize those four to minimize your risk of COVID,” Alaska Chief Medical Officer Dr. Anne Zink said during a COVID-19 press conference Tuesday.
